Wilson Soon to Tell His Decision in Matter.

HEAR OPINIONS

Importuned, He Decides Not to Defer Announcement Until Vacation Ends, But to Indicate His Plans in a Short Time.

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 12.-Presidentmight make an announcement within a few days as to whether or not he will call an extra session of Congress to revise the tariff. He had intended de- able laying any announcement along this line until after the return from his proposed vacation, set for about Dec. 16.
It was suggested to him yesterday, however, that congressmen would benefit by an early announcement, in that they could arrange for accommodations at Washington for a definite period. "I hadn't thought of that," said the governor. "Of course I don't see any publie need for announcing my decision now, except perhaps to quiet any speculation as to whether there is going to be early action or not. I had fully intended to wait before announcing what I was going to do until after I got back from my vacation. I was going to hear and read opinions in the meantime." "It's very interesting, the consensus of opinon on the extra session. "You mean the opinion in favor of it?" he was asked.

He would not say, however, what his decision would be. An interviewer inquired what he thought the purpose must have been of the framers of the constitution in so arranging that in the ordinary course of events a Congress would not meet until nearly thirteen months after the election of a presi-

"It must have been," he replied, "that the exact result of an election in the early days would not be known everywhere for several months on account of the lack of transportation facilities. It really is the result of an extraordinary arrangement that a Congress doesn't meet until more than a year after the presidential election in which the wishes of the people are expressed."

Governor Wilson expects to name, along with the other members of his cabinet, an executive for the proposed department of labor.

I hope there will be a new member of the cabinet for the department of labor," he said. "It will be a very important selection to make. Everybody confidently expects it, and I have been told that all sides in Congress favor the new department. The immediate creation of the department is of course de-pendent on the action of the approaching session of Congress," suppose the name of the present department of commerce and labor will have to be changed."

The president-elect said be regretted very much to hear of the resignation of British ambassador, James Bryce "I have known him a great many years," he said, "and he is one of the most in teresting men I've ever known."

The governor said he was turning over in his mind ideas for his annual message to the New Jersey legislature, which convenes on January I. He said he would urge especially the adoption of resolutions favoring the amendments proposing an income tax and popular election of United States senators.

Again the president-elect referred to lack of power of the New Jersey state's executive in enforcing the law. "The governor of New Jersey is sworn to enforce the law," he said, "but has absolutely no power to do it at any point. The governor has not only no power of removal, but he has no direct power of discipline. All you can do is to expose local officials if they do not enforce the law."

"I am better than I was: but, my mouth not being yet perfectly reduced. I have got a fresh blister upon my back. Well may it bend with such a weight of calamities. I have sent for my bathing cloathes and on Sunday night shall take a souze. I think it a pleasant remedy."

Apparently in 1741 a lady could not take a bath even on Sunday night and in the privacy of her chamber without ber "bathing cloathes."

Mrs. Montagu writes again: "My lip is not entirely reduced, though I have been blistered twice, once blooded and bave five times taken physic, have lived upon chicken and white meats and drunk nothing but water. I have suffered great disappointment about the warm bath which I am advised to try, for the bathing tubs are so out of order that we have not yet been able to make them hold water."-Westminster Gazette.

A TONIC FOR GIRLS

Girls who study hard or work hard, who grow pale and thin, who come home from school or shop too tired to do anything even in the way of amusement-these are the girls who will get most benefit from a course of treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale No medicine ever offered the public has been such a boon to suffering women and girls as this tonic edy. These pills are not a mere stimulant, giving temporary relief; they build up the body anew by making rich, red blood that imparts splendid health, brightness, cheerfulness, energy and ambition.

Williams' Pink Pills begin their work of improvement with the first dose. The first sign of improvement is usually an increased appetite, the absence of distressing symptoms after eating, more refreshing sleep, a better color in face and lips. These are signs that pure rich blood is now circulating through the body and that, with this necessary assistance, nature is effecting a cure.

Mrs. John Brandow, of R. F. D. No.
5, Harbor Beach, Mich., who was cured

by these pills, says:
"I began to be animic, while in school, for the hard study and confinement caused me to become run down. I suffered from severe headaches and such dizzy spells that I could hardly walk. I could not sleep at night and, although I would get hungry, could not est without distress. My heart fluttered and there was such a pain around it that I could only take short breaths or gasps. I was very nervous, lost in weight and had no color. I was not confined to bed, but could hardly drag

"For two years I tried many doctors At last I began to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and soon my blood became rich and pure, my heart strong and I felt better than in years. I continued taking the pills and was cured."

There is new strength for tired order.

There is new strength for tired girls and women in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People; they make new blood that dispels the "always tired" feeling and the continual backaches. They banish headaches, low spirits, palpita-tion of the heart and fits of nervous-

THE FRIENDLESS SPIDER.

He's a Pretty Good Insect In Spite of His Looks and His Webs. Aside from snakes, there is probably no living thing which can look to mankind for friendship with so little hope as the spider, yet when the spider is fairly brought to trial it is rather hard | marble or bronze his conception of life his appearance and a few cobwebs. Apart from furnishing an example of industry and patience from which we might well profit, the spider feeds exclusively upon freshly killed insects, all of them being of the kind denounced by sanitary authorities, the housefly being its favorite quarry.

As the actual destruction of a few bundred housefiles means that several hundred thousand that would otherwise have spent gay lives in transmitting typhold and other diseases will not come into existence and as almost any spider should be able to account for as many as 300 in the course of a summer, to say nothing of stray mosquitoes and black gnats, we surely owe him something more than a flap with a slipper when we happen to catch him out of his hole.

A spider can bite, of course, but be seldom does except in self defense, and even then the bite is not much worse than would have been received from any one of the several bundred mosquitoes be has probably dined upon or will, if let alone. In the light of present scientific knowledge the story of the spider and the fly that was invited into the pretty parlor does not cause such a surge of sympathy for the fly as it once did.-Harper's

The Struggles of a Sculptor. Auguste Rodin, the French sculptor, had a great struggle with poverty and adverse criticism in his youth. Of an eposide of this early period a writer says: "With that inflexible will and singleness of purpose that never failed him throughout his career the young sculptor set himself to express in clay, to prove anything against him except and art. He used his leisure in working at nighttime in a deserted stable he had transformed into a studio at his wonderful mask of The Man With the Broken Nose.' After eighteen months of hard and patient labor he finished this mask and sent it to the salon. It took the hanging committee fourteen years to discover any merit in the work, for it was rejected in 1864 and finally accepted only in 1878."

Literary Coincidence. Resemblance does not always mean plagiarism. There was no plagiarism certainly in Newman's line, "The night is dark, and I am far from home," though it has been pointed out that it almost exactly reproduces a line in a play printed in 1599. This play is "Two Angry Women of Abington," by Henry Porter, and the original line runs, "Tis late and dark and I am
